

the collision with the citizens, and of habituating the army to shed the blood of the people. There were four persons killed at Mazon, two mortally wounded, and six others more or less severely injured.

P. S. The author of the attempt is named Nicolas Papad, he is 27 years of age, born in the district of Vages, and established at Paris about three years. The house risen by General Schneider was also wounded. The disturbances at Clermont were completely suppressed.

SPAIN.

The Spanish Government has permitted the Infante Don Francisco de Paula and his family to return to Madrid. This measure will give a death blow to the hopes of the 18 Regent.

Expatriation has signified to the French Government that the Queen, being a minor, would not be permitted to receive letters from an Ambassador, even if deputed by the government for that purpose.

Spain and Portugal are on the worst terms. Many persons have been between them in the past. The Regent of Spain is well disposed for a rupture with Donna Maria.

TRUCKS AND EGYPT.

The Levant mail, due at Marseilles on the 11th inst., has brought letters, says the Morning Post of the 15th, from our correspondents in Constantinople of the 24th, Alexandria the 26th, Smyrna the 26th, Athens the 26th, and Malta the 26th inst. The news is of interest.

Our correspondent in the Turkish capital supplies important information that the Porte had relinquished the present the projected expedition against Tunis. Tahir Pacha, who was appointed to command it, having completed his mission at Candia, was to return to Constantinople. Diplomacy will now have time to reconcile the dispute between the Sultan and the Bey of Tunis.

CHINA AND INDIA.

The overland mail from Bombay arrived at London on Saturday evening, the 14th ult. The papers are filled with long extracts from Canton papers, to the 20th May, only three days later, however, than the news received here by the Florida, but somewhat different. As an instance Loa, Koshen was sent to Peking in chains, there to be put to death by the most execrable tortures. His family and relations were to be exterminated, and the country around his birthplace, to be laid desolate. A ship from England, with provisions for the expedition, had sailed north direct for Chusan, knowing nothing of recent alterations, when her commander, Capt. Stead, R. N., being suddenly seized upon, was murdered by the Mandarin. Trade had been partially resumed, but sadly to the disadvantage of the English, everything being sold for half dollars about one third above the customary prices, and no goods being purchased in return. Nearly thirty thousand of the flower of the Chinese troops, said to be much superior to those who had before made their appearance, were quartered in Canton, and the erection of a fort commenced.

From the Boston Daily Mail. THE TERRIBLE ACCIDENT ON THE WESTERN RAILROAD.

We came through from Albany yesterday, and stopped some time at Westfield, waiting for the upward train, which gave us an opportunity to see the fragments of that terrible collision. The two engines, and the two cars next them respectively, were so completely splintered, that, excepting the wheels and bottoms, there was scarcely a piece a foot long. One of the engine boilers burst by the collision, and both engines were completely smashed together.

Three of the wounded persons were dead when we left Westfield, yesterday—namely, Mr. Warren the conductor, Mr. Brewer of Westfield, and one of the three children of the niece of Major Whistler. The latter expired while we were present. The other two children of the same lady, and eight of the other wounded persons, it is thought cannot survive.

The following account in the Morning Post is very correct:

Both engines were at full speed, and the engine men had only time to reverse their engines and jump off. The shock was tremendous, and was instantly over. The down train consisted of two passenger cars and a baggage car, the latter being behind. The car in which a number of ladies were in the saloon, was next to the tender, and this car was smashed into a space of a few feet, in the ruins of which the ladies were found, together with the wood from the tender, and the fragments. On extricating them, many were found much injured, but none fatally.

One lady, Mrs. Bloodgood, of Albany, had a leg broken, and the back of another female was broken or seriously injured. The conductor, Mr. Warren, was standing on the platform, between two cars, was driven through the partition, and so seriously injured that our informant states he died that evening. In the other train, Mr. Brewer, of Westfield, was greatly, and it was feared, fatally hurt. There were about a hundred passengers in both trains and between twenty and thirty had limbs broken, or were more or less injured.

The wounded were placed in a baggage car, which was moved by hand to Westfield. The collision is understood to have been caused by a change in the hour of starting, at one end of the route, notice of which was forwarded the day before by a conductor, who forgot to deliver the message. The trains met at a point of the road where the view was obstructed by a ledge of rocks.

The following statement was drawn up at Springfield on Tuesday, and signed by twenty-six of the passengers:

"The undersigned, passengers in the train of cars which experienced the dreadful collision of to-day, deem it a duty which we owe to the public to state that we believe the accident to have been the result of sheer carelessness on the part of those who managed the trains. First, There was no baggage car in either train between the engine and passenger cars; had there been much of the force of the collision would have been broken, and consequently much of the peril of life and limb would have been avoided. That many lives were not sacrificed is truly unaccountable.

Second, From all the information which we can obtain, it was the duty of the train bound westward to have waited at Westfield, until the opposite train came down, whereas it proceeded immediately under full speed through the most dangerous part of the road. Some of the passengers heard the remark from Mr. Moore, conductor going west, that he expected to meet the train near the place where the cars struck. A passenger testifies that he heard Mr. Moore say that the train going west ought to have waited at Westfield till the other train came down. This was after the accident occurred. The competency of the public to judge of the dreadful affair renders any comment on such statements unnecessary."

Approaching Ellettsville. The annual elections in New Jersey and Ohio take place, or commence on the 12th of next month. In Maryland on the 6th.

ALEXANDER McLEOD.

The long expected trial of this individual has at last come on. It commenced last Monday the 4th. He was brought through part of the town of Eliza and into Court by the sheriff, who was attended by a single peace officer. There was not the least sign of excitement manifested, but, on the contrary, the utmost order prevailed. The testimony on the part of the State is completed, and Mr. Hall, the Attorney General has announced that the case for the prosecution would be rested on this evidence, and that no further testimony to prove the presence of McLeod in the Caroline affair would be offered, and that the counsel for the State would mainly attempt to refute the testimony given for the prisoner that he was elsewhere on the night of the destruction. The reports of the evidences taken are very long and very similar. An abstract of those bearing directly on the question is all that is necessary to give.

Mr. Wells, the owner of the boat, was sworn, and in substance testified that the Caroline was employed as a common passenger boat to ply between Schenectady, in the U. S. and Navy Island—that it took passengers and freight like any other boat—that the sole object of running it was to make money—that the company on board were merely lodgers for the night who could not obtain lodgings at the public houses, being filled to overflowing (this circumstance being by the bar-keepers)—and that to his knowledge, there was no armed force on board, and no munitions of war.

Samuel Brown, sworn. Knows the prisoner. On the night the boat was burned saw a beam of light at the head of the "Cut," so called, saw two or three boats return from Schenectady, came to the Cut followed them towards Chippewa Creek; boats landed some 25 rods above the Cut. There were 10 or 12 men in each boat, should say McLeod was in one of them. The men from the boats went to Davis tavern, I went, they talked of what had occurred; they stopped in front of the tavern saw the one I call McLeod there—was within 8 or 10 feet of him, and saw that it was McLeod as that he is now sitting before me. Some one came into the bar-room and said McLeod was standing on the steps. He had on a belt and a sword or cut-throat by his side.

Charles Parks. I reside in Canada in Niagara district. Was tending bar for Mr. Davis at the time of the destruction, knew the prisoner, saw him on the day of the destruction at Chippewa; saw him through the day; think saw him again after dark; there was a gentleman come to see him, he got up at about 8 or 9 o'clock; told the bar keeper if any one inquired for him to reply that he had gone to Niagara; saw him after-wards there were many persons with him; they went up Niagara river in boats; think he was armed; had on a sword and belt; have heard him speak of the Caroline, in company with his mess at Davis' tavern he said to the purport that he had killed a Yankee. When the boats started from Navy Island he was certain that M. was in one of them.

Henry Myers examined. Reside in Canandaigua. Was moving out of Canada; have before seen McLeod. At this time stopped at the tavern to bait my horses, and it being very cold, went into the bar-room to warm myself; there were between fifty and sixty men there, talking together; some of them were within the bar, and others outside it; took them to be soldiers; some of them had weapons and some had not; the conversation among them was about who killed Darlee. Some one asked, "where is the man that shot him?" and McLeod said, "here is the one; by G—d, I am the one that shot him;" he then pulled out a pistol, and said, "that is the pistol that shot him;" then he put up his pistol and pulled out his sword, and said, "there is the blood of the dead—of Yankee?" there was blood on the sword, saw but one side of the sword, and there was about four or five inches of dry blood upon it. Went out to the shed to feed my horses, and he and two or three more followed me out, and asked me where I was moving to. Told them, and gave as a reason that all my friends lived there, and that my wife was not satisfied to stay in Canada, and I thought it better to move out. Some one then said I was a damned rebel, and McLeod said I was a damned Yankee, and should go no further. They were there some time talking, and at last McLeod said, if I treated the company I might go on. Told them I had nothing against either side, and would not mind treating them. I then went into the bar and they followed me, and drank until it amounted to a dollar, which I paid, and proceeded with my family as soon as I could; I have at no other time heard McLeod say anything about it, nor do I know any thing about the burning of the Caroline.

Calvin Wilson. I reside in the town of Wilson; I know McLeod well by sight; was in Canada the first part of January 1837; owned and kept a ferry across Niagara river; recollect seeing McLeod between 5th and 10th of January; saw him at the house of J. Miller in Niagara village, quite a number of persons were with him. They were in a sitting room in the public house. The subject was brought up about the destruction of the Caroline by Mr. Bancroft, and how many there were that were killed, murdered or burnt. McLeod then replied, "he thought there was not more than three or four, and he did not know but four, and one thing he said he did know, that there was one—Yankee, or rebel, got shot on the wharf."

Sam Hindman testified that he saw McLeod on the evening of the destruction of the Caroline, at Mr. Davis' at about nine in the evening.

Much other testimony identifies him as being about and actually engaged in some enterprise on the day and evening of the outrage.

Wm. Economy.—The Government will be a loser of ninety thousand dollars by the Bank of the United States. This sum might have been saved had Pong main a prompt demand for it before the last explosion of the monster.—Spirit of the Age.

Ninety thousand dollars, say you? Let's see how it will look in figures.—$90,000.—It actually looks large—very large! And all this lost "because Mr. Ewing did not make a prompt demand of the money!" That's too bad, entirely.—But let us look at a few of the hundreds of losses by "failing to demand" money from collectors which occurred during the reign of Joe-Francis.

Mr. Woodbury "failed to demand" of Samuel Swartwout until the amount he had in his hands was small and a half dollar—when he ran away! $1,500,000 and he ran away with the money! $0,000

He "failed to demand" of P. J. P. 200,000

He "failed to demand" of Boyd $0,000

and he ran away! $0,000

He "failed to demand" of numerous other collectors, who had given up their last impious sum, say the small estimate of $50,000

Shutting a loss by Van Buren economy of 2,250,000

Lost by Wm. Economy $0,000

Majority of JASS in favor of low price economy $2,000,000

Only few million are hundred and ninety thousand dollars difference! Taking the low low estimate of the loss by Wm. Economy, and also leaving out the preceding item that this loss occurred through an error tion created by the loco furore triumphant!"

Gentlemen "democrats" any time you feel desirous to manufacture a statement of Whig villainy, we beg you to do it freely, and we will meet it with facts showing infinitely greater villainies of your own.—Down with your stakes, to any amount; they shall be covered.

We owe the Spirit of the Age an apology for a misquotation of its language in our last, respecting the Maine election. The words "silver-tongued thunder" should have read "seven-tongued thunder." The error occurred in consequence of a "pick" on the word in our copy of the Age, which rendered it easily mistaken for "silver-tongued." We intentionally garbled or misquote no man's language, and ever acknowledge correction when thus in error.

By Tuesday Morning's Mail.

Many have seen the prospect is that the locos have swept the state. Returns as far as reported are not claimed as accurate, but they are significant of the result. Six counties has given opposition majorities for governor, while the whigs have triumphed in but four. For Assembly, 27 locos, and 17 whigs.

The Baltimore American says—"The result in this city, by which the Van Buren majority was increased upwards of a thousand votes, was equally unexpected to both parties. The loss of Whig members in the House of Delegates, as far as heard from, is 14.

The last Senate comprised 15 Whigs and 6 Van Buren men; House, 61 Whigs and 18 V. B. men.

DANIEL C. PAYNE. An inquest was held by Justice Merritt, of Hoboken, acting as Coroner, on the body of this individual, at Hoboken this morning. It appeared in evidence that since the death of Mary Rogers, to whom he was under marriage engagements, the deceased had been greatly dejected in mind, which had increased upon him. On Thursday afternoon he left his brother's residence apparently well. He was next seen on the spot where miss Rogers is said to have been murdered, with some writing before him, but took no notice of any one. About ten o'clock at night he called at the tavern in the village, having lost his hat, and apparently much intoxicated, but with rather an unusual sleepy appearance. He soon left the house, having been provided with a hat, and was next seen about day break on Friday morning lying beside the road, breathing in a stertorous manner, and almost senseless. He was roused up and was again seen in the forenoon in a similar condition.

At 3 o'clock, in the afternoon he was seen sitting on one of the benches near the cave, leaning his head down. At five o'clock he was found, having fallen backwards from the bench, on which his feet rested, and was raised up alive, but immediately ceased to breathe.

This morning his hat and handkerchief and a broken vial, having the odour of laudanum, were found on the spot where miss Rogers is supposed to have been murdered. The papers about his person prove to be of no value in relation to the development of the murder of miss Rogers. A post mortem examination is now taking place, after which the Jury will render their verdict.—[N. Y. Jour. Commerce of Saturday.]

Secretary's Office, Oct. 7, 1841.
CIRCULAR.

A Special meeting of the Rutland County Temperance Society is hereby called to be held at the North Church in Rutland on the 13th day of October, instant, at one o'clock, afternoon.

Mr. Hawkins—the celebrated reformed inebriate of Baltimore—a delegate from the Massachusetts Society of reformed inebriates, will be present for one day only.

As this is the only opportunity for the friends of Temperance in this County to avail themselves of so powerful an auxiliary to their cause, it is earnestly desired that they will not only attend themselves, but will persuade and bring with them, or provide conveyances for all those of Temperance, however old-timed,—for drunkards of all classes, however degraded and hopeless.

In behalf of the Executive Committee,
F. W. HOPKINS, Secretary.

The Vergennes Vermonter has passed into the hands of E. W. Blaisdell from Messrs. Roberts. The first number issued by the new publisher shows a marked improvement. Bring it up to what a Whig newspaper should be, friend Blaisdell, and do not let it wear that sickly, neglected appearance which most of the country opposition papers exhibit. A Whig publication must be laboriously conducted or it will not be supported, for their papers are not sustained, like those of the Tories, through spite and pride whether they possess intrinsic merit or not.
